The underrighted, in effering this valuable medicine to the problem of the service of the advertisement, desires to say that in doing so be has yielded to the earnest entreaties of many of these who have been permanently corred of FEVER and AGUE and other KINDRED DISEASES by its use, and who have expressed a desire to have some notice of it in acconvenient form that could be sent in an excelope through the Post-Office to their friends in various actions of the country. It has never before been adventised in any newspaper, and is wholly indebted for its general use and great popularity in various localities, particularly in and around the Chites of New York, Brockling, Newark, &c., to the personal recommendations of those who have witnessed, in themselves or others, its truly wonderful effects, with the confidence tounded on experience, it is now officed to the afflicted, saying them first to try it themselves and if it effects a permanent care then to make it known to their friends.

Mr. F. S. STREET, No. 22 Beekman st.:

Dear Sir: I desire to said my testimony to the value of ROSENnouran's Oriental Bitters, as it has effected a perfect cure of sever and Ague in my case, after all other reinedies had failed, and as I have tried almost everything offered for the cure of this disease by druggists and physicians, including DESHLER'S PHLES, I think I have had sufficient experience to warrant me in giving an opinion. I was attacked with Fever and Ague on Stateo Island in Angust last, and suffered greatly from its effects till cold weather set in, when it disappeared. Last Spring however, it attacked me again with renewed violence.
I was entirely prostrated, so that I could not attend to my business. After trying everything that could be found, I was almost giving up in despair, when I accidentally neard of some wonderful sures effected by your Bitters. With very little hope of relief. I was finally induced to give your modicine a trial. The first dose give me hope of success, and in less than two weeks I was cured, to the actualishment of my friends, who had given my case up as hepless. Since my own cure I have also been instrumental in curing a number of my friends, who had given my case up a hepless. Since my own cure I have also been hourn's Oriental Bitters, all of whom will cheerfully units with me in featifying to the virtues of a remedy that has been the means of restoring them to health. If you will refer persons afflicted with this disease to me, I shall take great pleasure in explaining more in detail the cases to which I alinde, as I regard it to be a duty which every member of the community owes to his fellows, to endeavor to relieve those who are suffering from this or any other disease. Yours, respectfully.

This book will interest all classes, and should have a wide circulation. Mr. McCormick is well known as a careful and graphic writer, and as he is the only American that has returned from a visit to the world-renowned Camp before Sevastopol, he is well qualified to speak upon many points of which no information has hitherto been secured. Hesides giving a miunte socurat of a lorg sejouru in the Camp of the Allies, full particulars of the great Army Hospitais at Scutari and Pera are introduced. Sevastopol is described in detail, and the unparalleled sufferings and mismanagement in the English Camp are portrayed in vivid style.

"The wit, the humor the logic, the learning and the knowledge of life which De Quincey deplays in 'The Note Book' make into one of the most faccinating writers of the ago." [The Times.

"One of the best, if not the very best, volume of this most british series of De Quincey's writings."

"The great and crowning glory of De Quincey is that mastery over the English language which made us to sail bim the greatest of prise writers. Since the English language has been writen we know of nothing comparable to his sivie, in spleador, variety, ease, idiomatic richness and grace—in a 1 the qualities of syle considered purely as form, and without reference to composition. If say one desires to see what our language is capable of, let him study De Quincey."
